For the Home Seamstress.

Buttons and button holes are the best fastenings for childrens clothes, and all tub garments, as hooks and eyes, besides pulling off sooner, will flatten in the ironing, and may make rust stains on the material. Button holes must be cut straight with the thread of the cloth, and buttonhole twist or coarse thread must be used. Working with a double thread is not to be commended.

For the children's play dresses or rompers, the closing at the back should be made placket fashion, as this is not likely to tear out. Sew a straight strip of material about an inch and a quarter wide, and the length of the opening, to the wrong side of the dress at the line of closing, turn over on itself, turn in the edge and stitch. Fold this strip back and make a buttonhole through the strip and the material of the dress at the neck, placing another at about yoke depth as well.

Where lace edging is applied to berthas or ruffles, it should be put on by hand, whipping it on to a folded edge that is hemmed; in some cases the edge is rolled, an inch or two at a time, and the lace then whipped on. When the lace is to be slightly gathered, the thread which is to be found at the top of the lace may be used as a gathering string and pulled as desired. The lace is held to the right side of the material, the edge of the material rolled on the wrong side, and then both of them whipped together with fine thread and stitches.

Feather-stitched seam covering is particularly useful for children's clothes, as it can be bought in various grades and may be used on all cotton materials.

If a skirt is straight, several tucks should be allowed, one or two inches wide, near the lower edge. These tucks are economical, as well as pretty, as they may be let down to lengthen the skirt.

Good Old Days.

How would you like to return to the Good Old Days before the bill collector was turned loose upon an unprotected public.

Before people knew that they had concealed within their anatomies that dreadful and worthless piece of machinery known as the vermiform appendix?

When every doctor had his "saddle bags" with him, and no matter what the trouble was he gave you calomel and quinine, and it always cured you?

Before we were notified on every hand that countless thousands of death-dealing microbes lurked in everything from love's first honeyed kiss to skillet of fried onions?

Before it became stylish to sleep away the long winter nights on a hard, thin mattress between two cold sheets?

When eggs were so cheap that your wife didn't hard them up and rush them off to market, without leaving even enough for an occasional eggnog?

When boys wore red-topped, brasted boots, and girls dressed in plain dresses and wore their hair plaited down their backs without a suggestion of spit curls, rats and psyche knots?

When everybody used the same kind of "cologne"?

When an invitation to a wedding and the "in-fair" didn't have to be responded to with a cut-glass punch bowl, when in all probability the very same day you sent the aforesaid punch bowl you were forced to drink butter-milk out of a stone china coffee cup?

When there were no telephones by which your wife could order a lot of trash that she did not need, and could notify you to come home before you had scarcely struck the club or the corner grocery?

When a girl could make up her bed and sweep her room without having a well defined case of "nervous prostration"?

When a boy could split a little kindling and carry in two buckets of coal without having a pain in his side or the headache?

When mother could get six children off in time for school, do all the household work, take a lot of good things to several sick neighbors and not have to be sent annually to her hospital for repairs?

When mothers looked after their babies instead of the pet dog?

When men settled their difficulties by appealing to their neighbors or with bare fists, instead of with Winchester and in the court-rooms?

When a man could take a little wine for his stomach's sake without going home drunk and beating up his wife and terrorizing the children generally?

When you didn't have to sell a good horse to buy your wife a hat, and to buy her a coat suit?

When a woman's evening dress came as high up as it did low down?

When a boy at Christmas time was satisfied with a package of fire crackers and three hog bladders, and a girl was delighted with a china doll and a candy sheep?

Before kids learned to write a letter to Santa Claus, asking for wagons, guns, pistols, dolls, doll buggies, doll beds, trains, automobiles, candy, oranges, bananas, nuts, wearing apparel of every description and cart and live pony?

When we used candles and tallow dip and didn't have to pay tribute to the Standard Oil Co.?

When boys spoke of their parents as "father" and "mother" instead of "the old lady" and "the governor"?

When children were taught to obey their parents rather than parents made to obey the child?

When shoes were fitted to the feet and not feet fitted to shoes?

When everybody worked, including father?

When women's shoe heels were really where they ought to be and not stuck in the shoe at an angle of 45 degrees?

How would you like to return to the Good Old Days when folks went to church to take part in the services and not to see how many pretty fixings they could put on and see what other folks wore?

When folks went home from church and discussed the good points in the sermon rather than cuss the minister for not being more entertaining and for preaching more than thirty minutes?—Ex

Hon. Ben Johnson.

The most prominent candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky now being mentioned is Hon. Ben Johnson, of Nelson county. Mr. Johnson is now serving his third or fourth term in Congress and is recognized as one of the leading Democrats in the House. He is a man of high character, and has had a wonderful successful career in public life. He has served his people faithfully in many positions—as Speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives, as State Senator, as Collector of Internal Revenue, of the Louisville district, as Secretary of the Campaign Committee and as mentioned above, as Congressman. As an organizer and a campaign manager he is not excelled by any one. He is being attacked as a whisky man, but the fact remains that he never tasted intoxicating liquor in his life, and there is not enough money in the world to get him to take a drink. He is one of the largest land-owners in Nelson county, one of the most successful farmers in the State, and surely these things ought to be considered by those Democrats looking for a winner. We want it distinctly understood that we are not advocating Mr. Johnson's claims to the nomination, but we do think the people are entitled to know the truth about this able man and faithful Democrat—Carlisle Mercury.

Commissioner's Sale.

ADAIR CIRCUIT COURT, KENTUCKY.
J. H. Young & Co., Plaintiff,
May Jones & Co., Defendant.
By virtue of a Judgment and Order of Sale of Adair Circuit Court, rendered at the January Term, thereof, 1910, in the above cause, for the sum of five debts amounting with their interest to $235.68, and 62.50 cents hereon, I shall proceed to offer for sale at Court-house door in Columbia Ky., to the highest bidder, at Public Auction, on Monday, 7th day of March, 1910, at one o'clock p. m., or thereabout (being County Court) upon a credit of six months, the following described property to-wit: Three certain tracts of land lying on Green River in Adair county, Ky., and known as the Rufus Jones farm. Two tracts contain 20 acres each and the other contains 2 acres. The Judgment and order of sale is referred to for complete description and boundary.

The two 20 acre tracts will be offered in one lot and the 2 acre tract in another, and then all three together, and the sale or sales, from which the most money will be realized, the bid or bids will be accepted.

For the purchase price, the purchaser with approved surety or securities, must execute Bond, bearing legal interest from day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a Judgment. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Fine Jerseys.

One hundred and sixty-five of the finest Jersey cattle that can be bought in England are now en route to this country from England for Elmendorf farm in Fayette county. There are five bulls and one hundred and sixty-five cows and heifers in the herd and with the arrival of those Elmendorf will have in round numbers five hundred fine Jersey cattle. All the cattle now being brought over were selected especially for Elmendorf by Dr. William Geddis, who has represented the United States Government abroad in that branch of the Department of Agriculture for the past fourteen years. Thirty of the cattle are from the famous herd of Lord Rothschild, and all of them are of the very cream of the English herds.

The Point of View.

William had just returned from college, resplendent in peg-top trousers, silk hosiery, a fancy waistcoat, and a necktie that spoke for itself. He entered the library where his father was reading. The old gentleman looked up and surveyed his son. The longer he looked, the more disgusted he became.

"Son," he finally blurted out, "you look like a d— fool!"
Later, the old major who lived next door came in and greeted the boy heartily. "William," he said, with undisguised admiration, "you look exactly like your father did twenty years ago when he came back from school!"
"Yes," replied William, with a smile, "so father was just telling me."—Everybody's.

Money in Poultry.

Did you ever stop to consider the vast amount of money represented by fancy poultry throughout the United States? For instance take the Chicago show with 3,200 birds, the Missouri State show with 5,231 birds, and the Oklahoma State show with 3,200 birds, all held at about the same time. Place an estimate on their value, which it is the safe to say would be at least $200.00 per head, or the vast sum of $233,620.00. Then think of the number of birds which these breeders have in their yards at home and the value that they represent, and then think of the thousands and thousands of breeders that did not exhibit at either of these three shows and the value of the birds owned by them. Do this and then let any one tell you there is no money in fancy poultry. Well, we will be surprised at you if you do.

ADAIR CIRCUIT COURT, KENTUCKY.
Strong Hill, Plaintiff,
W. R. Compton & J. H. Napier, Deft.
By virtue of a Judgment and Order of Sale of Adair Circuit Court, rendered at the January Term, thereof, 1910, in the above cause, for the sum of $30, with interest from the 16th day of Oct 1903 against W. R. Compton and two thirds of $20.00 against J. H. Napier, with the interest at the rate of six per cent, per annum from the 30th day of October, 1905 until paid, and $23.75 cents hereon, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court-house door in Columbia, Ky., to the highest bidder, at Public Auction, on Monday the 7th day of March, 1910, at one o'clock p. m., or thereabout (being County Court) upon a credit six months, the following described property to-wit: A certain tract of land situated in Adair County, Ky., upon the waters of Big Creek and bounded as follows: Beginning at a black oak on the bank of Big Creek, thence running an eastern direction with Curt Keltner to W. L. Grady's line, thence running a northern direction with Grady's line to J. G. Sexton's line, thence running the same direction with said Sexton's line to a stone in the head of a hollow in Sexton's line, thence running down said hollow to Big Creek, thence up Big Creek to the beginning.

For the purchase price, the purchaser with approved surety or securities, must execute Bond, bearing legal interest from day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a Judgment. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

W. A. Coffey, Master Commissioner.

While the winter has been colder than for many years there has not yet occurred a sharp dip such as may cause a disaster to fruit. Some slight damage of course has been done, but no general killing of the main crops is feared. There is more danger that the sleet will damage the trees by breaking the limbs and twigs.

Some people are like a sore finger at a ball game—they are always getting hurt, and going about with a bloody rag tied around their feelings.

Clean Your Premises.

To the people of Adair County:
The time has come now, when we ought to look after the conditions of our premises, and see that everything is in good sanitary condition. Look into the condition of the collars, the privies and everything that is in an unclean condition. It is a great deal easier to prevent disease, than it is to cure it when it comes. I want especially the doctors to notify me of any contagious or epidemic disease that they may find in the bounds of their practice. While I am at all times ready to obey any calls that I may receive from the doctor, I cannot know, unless I am notified, I am a mind reader, and I never have professed to be. And it is the duty of not only the doctors, but the duty of the head of families to give me information along these lines. I have been trying to fumigate every house where a consumptive has died, but frequently a notice in the County paper is the first intimation that I have of the death of a consumptive. The physicians ought to be more particular about these important things. I want information about all these diseases, whether the cases have died or recovered.

Consumption, typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever, whooping cough, measles and cholera infantum. I did a great deal of work along these lines last year, but I want to do more this year, if the epidemics require it. Let every body be ready to fight the pestiferous fly when it makes its appearance. All the houses ought to be screened, and especially where any body in sick. A hint to the wise ought to be sufficient.

U. L. Taylor, Health Officer, Adair County.

Mayor Clarence E. Woods, of Richmond, is urging the editors and many prominent people in Kentucky to use their influence to secure the passage of a non-partisan uniform account law, and providing for state inspectors. The law would apply to all state, city and county officers, and would be the means of saving thousands of dollars of the public funds. The people need to know more of the doings of their public servants and this law should pass without a dissenting voice. The state should provide for inspectors and also have accounts of all public officials published that the people might know what becomes of their money.

Stopped his Paper.

Little Helps.

A gentleman who has been taking the Herald for ten years came into the office Saturday and discontinued it. Knowing he had a grievance, we did not gratify him by asking him his reasons for stopping the paper, but removed the slip bearing his name from our subscription book without a word. At this he seemed much disappointed and told us why he was having his name removed. He said that the paper contained too many advertisements. Two weeks ago the Herald contained 27 columns of reading matter, last week 26 columns and about averages the latter figure the year around. At this rate the paper contains, for the year, 1,352 columns, which at a dollar a year would cost this gentleman about one-fourteenth part of a cent per column for his reading matter, to say nothing of the bargains offered to him through the advertising columns of the paper, many of which he takes advantage of. He had hardly gotten out of the office when another gentleman, with a benign smile on his ruddy cheek and possessing less than half the worldly goods of the other, stepped in and paid for the past and the ensuing year, saying that in reading the advertisements in the last issue, he had made or saved about twenty dollars. Without the merchants and other advertisers, there would be no newspapers and, consequently, no Herald. We hesitate even to think what a calamity that would be to our beloved county. We can well afford to spare this choleric complainer rather than contribute to the great calamity.

—Harrodsburg Herald.

Save all the paper bags, and if you do not have enough, use the loose newspapers; fill these with the fine coal or chips. When fuel is to be added to the fire, drop the bag or parcel on the burning coals, and none will be scattered, no noise will be made, and the stove door can be kept open a little time. Learn to save the "littles."

Before attempting a piece of sewing, pour gasoline about the working part of the machine, just as you would oil it; then run it a few seconds leaving it unthreaded; then wipe off all dirt that shows up, clean with a soft, clean cloth, and oil with the best oil you can get. See that you have the oil made purposely for the sewing machine.

To color carpet rugs with coppers, make a strong copperas dye; they, in another kettle make a strong solution of lye. Have the rugs clean dip the rugs first in copperas water, drain them, dip in the lye, drain; continue to dip alternately back and forth from one dip to the other until the desired shade is obtained. Let dry, and wash thoroughly.

Cloth that has become shiny may be restored to its former appearance by being rubbed with turpentine. Use very little turpentine, and rub the cloth very hard, going over and finishing a small portion at a time. The smell will soon evaporate by exposure to the air. A weak solution of ammonia will have the same effect, but it is apt to turn the cloth brown.

Good Enough for Any Body.

The Ten Business Commandments, as outlined by the Interstate Sand Company, Cleveland:

1. Thou shalt not wait for something to turn up, but shalt pull off thy coat, and go to work that thou mayest prosper in thy affairs and make the work "failure" spell "success."
2. Thou shalt not be content to go about thy business looking like a bum, for thou shouldst know that thy personal appearance is better than a letter of recommendation.

3. Thou shalt not try to make excuses, nor shalt thou say to those who chide thee, "I didn't think."

4. Thou shalt not wait to be told what thou shalt do, nor in what manner thou shalt do it, for thus may thy days be long in the job which fortune hath given thee.

5. Thou shalt not fail to maintain thine own integrity, nor shalt thou be guilty of anything that will less thy good respect for thyself.

6. Thou shalt not covet the other fellow's job nor his salary, nor the position which he hath gained by his own hard labor.

7. Thou shalt not fail to live within thy income, nor shalt thou contract any debts when thou canst not see thy way clear to pay them.

8. Thou shalt not fail to blow thine own horn, for he who is afraid to blow his own horn at the proper occasion findeth nobody standing ready to blow it for him.

9. Thou shalt not hesitate to say "No," when thou meanest "No," nor shalt thou fail to remember that there are occasions when it is unsafe to bind thyself to hasty judgment.

10. Thou shalt give every man a square deal. This is the last and great commandment, and there is no other like unto it. Upon this commandment dependeth all the law and the profits of the business world.—Ex

The Key Under the Door.

"It is customary for the back door to be put halfway under the door so that I can reach it when coming out duty late at night," remarked an artist to a London TH-Hits writer. "The other morning at breakfast my landlady said to me, 'You know, I had an awful fright last night. I put the key halfway under the door, as usual, when, to my horror, I saw it drawn slowly out of sight. I of course thought some one had got the key and would unlock the door and come in, so I quickly bolted it and shouted through the keyhole, 'My word, if you don't bring that key back!' Not daring to retire to rest, I sat quietly listening for a time. Then I got a table knife and pushed it under the door to see if the key had really been taken right away and to my surprise drew the key back again. So, very cautiously, I unlocked and unbolted the door, looked out and found not a burglar, but our own wicked cat, who, while sitting on the doorstep and seeing the key pushed under the door, must have drawn the key out of sight with her paws, thinking I was playing with her."

An American Joke From England.

The typical American, says a contributor to the English Illustrated Magazine, is often quick tempered and prone to recognize a joke made by another, with results that are sometimes unpleasant.

Thus, a senator was once at a fashionable dinner party at Washington when he asked what fish he would like.

"Waal," he said, "I reckon I'll take platefish."

A wit who chanced to be present remarked with a twinkle in his eye, "Ah, senator, suit a place seeker?"

"Yes," answered the senator, at the same time whipping out a revolver and shooting the wit dead, "but what's that to you, you dern'd stranger?"

Afterward, when the joke was explained to him, the senator confessed that he had acted rather hastily, and to show that he bore no grudge he went to the funeral of the inopportune wit.

A Queen Elizabeth Joke.

Queen Elizabeth liked her jokes, and although her pleasantries were of a less singular nature than her father's, she was not less even more fond of a mild and not usually when disposed to be frolicsome. A tale may be found in one of Lord Essex's letters with regard to a new dress belonging to one of her maids of honor, over the possession of which the other had been rash enough to exhibit some elation.

The young lady, it seemed, had been fished taller than her majesty, hardly perhaps quite a nice or loyal thing to be. Having decided that the dress should be made over to her custody, the queen, first carefully selecting an extremely wet day, was pleased to put on and trail it for yards behind her in the mud, the owner of the humiliating garment having to appear as delighted with the royal fun and commendation as the rest of the look-on.—London Teller.

And All With Company There.

"Xox, children," said the mother as a young child, it seemed, had come in, "suppose you run off and play by yourselves."

"All right, mother," replied Edith. "Can we go up and play Hamlet and Ophelia?"

"Certainly," smiled the mother, while the young child, it seemed, had come in, "Goody," replied Edith, then, turning to her sister, she said, "Now, Maude, you run up to mamma's room and get all her false hair that you can find.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Love.

Property, there is only one verb to love. It is not "amo." It is not "aimer." It is not the softest Italian verb. No printed language of man knows it. But the birds know it, and the wild bird knows it, even the sea knows it. The rose is it, and the moon is it, and the look of a man's eyes into a woman's is it, and the look of a woman's eyes back again is it. But no man or woman can say it in any language but endures—"Love Letters of the King."

To love a woman for her wealth is like loving a dog for the nice rug his hide will make later on.

Constipation Cure Free

With the first signs of constipation you resort to the home methods of relief, such as hot or cold water, or arising, lots of stewed fruit with your breakfast, etc., but what do you do when these fail?

The majority then start on salts and purgative waters, then change to cathartic pills, etc., so far as permanent results go. Now you should try just once again, but try some practical and sensible remedy made and intended for the purpose you are trying to accomplish. Such a remedy, as thousands can testify, is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is guaranteed to be permanent in its results.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is such a brief use of it the stomach and bowel movements are trained to again do their work normally, so that in the end you can do away with medicines of all kinds. That it will do this Mr. C. Y. Dodson of Bartlett, Va., and so fully attests, and so will Mrs. S. A. Hampton of Portage, O.

To those who are still skeptical there is a way to prove these assertions without a penny of expense: Simply send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and obtain a free sample bottle. After using it, if you are then convinced it is the remedy you need, buy a fifty-cent or one-dollar bottle of your druggist and continue to use it for a few days until you are cured. The directions are simple and the cost does not erize and promptly to decide if small statements are guaranteed or money will be refunded.

This remedy is over a quarter of a century old and is personally known by more druggists than any other similar remedy in the American market. Because of its effectiveness, pleasant taste, and its least invasive remedy for children, women and old folks generally, Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire. For the free sample bottle, simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise, to the nearest doctor's office, address is Dr. W. R. Caldwell, 12300 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

ADAIR CIRCUIT COURT, KENTUCKY

T. H. Cud & Co., Plaintiff, v. Jimmie Cud & Co., Defendant.

By virtue of a Judgment and Order of Sale of Adair Circuit Court, rendered at the January Term, thereof, 1910, in the above cause, and costs herein, I shall proceed to offer for sale, at the Court-house door in Columbia, Ky., to the highest bidder, at Public Auction, on Monday the 7th day of March, 1910, at one o'clock p. m., or thereabout (being Court day) upon a credit six months, the following described property, to-wit:

A certain tract of land situated near the town of Columbia, Ky., bounded on the east by the Columbia and Campbellsburg Turn Pike; on the north by the lands of J. H. Young and J. J. Biggs; on the west by the lands of J. J. Biggs and S. D. Barbee, and on the south by the lands of J. J. Biggs and contains 38 acres more or less, and is the same lands which were conveyed to James H. Cud by the Master Commissioner of the Adair Circuit Court, less a portion of same which was conveyed by said Cud to Mary Smythe and 2 acres which were conveyed to J. J. Biggs by Bettie Tipton, &c.

For the purchase price, the purchaser with approved surety or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a Judgment. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with the conditions.

W. A. Coffey, Master Commissioner.

Just received, a nice line of candies from D. Auerbach & Sons, of New York. Call on us. Young Bros.

I will on Monday March 7, 1910, at the court-house door in Columbia, Ky., sell at Public Auction to the highest bidder, about 180+ acres of land lying on the waters of Green river, near Ella, post-office, which is known as the Sarah Gadsberry land, and belonged to Sarah Gadsberry at the time of his death. Terms of sale will be made known on day of sale. Jas. Garnett, Executor, 16-2 of J. S. Stapp.

I have a surry, good as new, one buggy, comparatively new, also a good set of double and single harness which I will sell privately at a bargain.

WED., MAR. 2, 1910.

The old adage, "distance lends enchantment" has been proven so often and in so many ways that there can scarcely be a doubt as to its correctness. In this section we have felt its force for many years and still many of the people are looking to the distant countries for the gratification of their hopes and desires. Every year many of our worthy citizens leave for a western paradise, as they imagine, and when that country has been reached they find the good and bad intermingled, the advantages and disadvantages—a place that extreme effort backed by good judgment, brings good results just like the place they left in this section. Too many fail to see the many advantages that have ever been open to them at the old home. They fail to appreciate the good that surrounds them, the blessings so common that they are overlooked until missed. In the distance, in the broad fields of the west, they see expanding opportunities, beautiful harvests, fine markets—a chance to become wealthy on short notice, but they fail to see the blizzards, the hot winds that cook vegetation, sand storms and disappointments. The glowing descriptions of that country, given by professional land sellers and transportation companies, blind many to the great possibilities that surround them in the Old Kentucky Home, where health, wealth and happiness are within as easy reach as the average country possesses. Not discrediting the agencies at work in developing the resources of the western States and Territories, we believe too many of them fail to tell the whole story or to give the wet and dry side. The good is too often magnified and exploited while the disagreeable is untold and the enchantment gets in its work. That there are richer fields of agricultural lands than this section affords need not be disputed, but in many respects we have our part of the desirable features that enter into life's struggles and produce the best results. Southern Kentucky, and Adair county in particular, lands produce abundantly and give good returns to intelligent industry. The climate is as good as any part of the land being in same latitude, while the drainage and pure fountains of water give health and happiness. The people are the old Kentucky kind—as good as earth possesses and as true to home and country as the needle to the pole. With a fair part of everything that is good, and as little of the disagreeable as any other section, we see no reasons why the average citizen should turn from the old home or fail to appreciate the many God given blessings so lavishly bestowed on our country. No season too wet, none too dry to cause serious alarm, enough made the worst years to keep the dinner pots overflowing. Not so in many of the new countries. It pours or parches—it's a bumper crop or a dwarf, an over abundance or failure—it's uncertain. To those who love adventure, who like to take chances, Southern Kentucky is not the place. To those who are industrious it offers ample reward with all the comforts of the average country. There is no reason to justify the unrest and desire of many to take chances, with their families in the uncertainties of the west by leaving one of the best States in the Union. The same efforts here as made in that section would produce wonderful results. We all need to stay, to work, to pull together and when thus we strive our section will bloom as the rose.

It begins to look like Ballanger will have to leave the Cabinet.

It is now believed that Governor Willson would not sign the Ripper bill.

The bill increasing the Circuit Judges salary to $4,200 has passed both Houses of the Kentucky Legislature.

The County Unit bill has passed the House. An effort will now be made to bring it again before the Senate.

There is but little chance for the $500,000 bond issue to pass during the present session of the Kentucky Legislature.

The Kentucky Legislature has fourteen more working days. But few bills have been passed up to the present.

Judge B. L. D. Guffey, who for years was prominent in Kentucky politics, and at one time on the Appellate bench, is dead at Morgantown.

The Crecelius law has been upheld by the Court of Appeals. The act provides a penalty for both the seller and the purchaser of tobacco which has been pooled.

Rowes X Roads.

There is a new boy at Ores Holt's. Ores himself is down sick again this week.

Isaac Wells is still on the sick list. He is old and feeble. He went through the war in Company G., 3rd Kentucky Infantry. He is 78 years old.

Eras Barger, of Columbia, was here at his uncle Bill Cook's this week on a visit for a few days.

Dudley Grider and Minnie Hale were married here last Saturday, the 20th inst.

Bomer Harvey and Nona Selby will be married here at Thomas Hadley's February 27th.

Mrs. Bill Wilburn and daughter, Miss Nellie, were visiting at Thomas Hadley's this week.

Fount Selby and T. D. Cump-ton have gone into the chicken business. They have 250 eggs setting at this time.

Miss Lete Wilburn, a neighbor girl here, ran away with a man by the name of John Mann to Tennessee and got married this week after which they went to his home in Simpson county, Ky. Mann only lived one week after they married. He died with heart trouble. Lete was a member of my Sunday School here and was a nice, smart girl and a member of the Oak Grove class of United Brethren in Christ. We as a church and Sunday School extend to her our heartfelt sympathy and pray God's best blessings on her in her sad hours of sorrow.

Thomas Hadley, Supt., Susie Hadley, Teacher. Old uncle Frank Hale died yesterday, February the 24th. He was an old soldier and had been down with rheumatism for years. Comrades the last roll call for us will soon be here and if you are not ready for the trip get ready for our time is short on earth.

Gadberry.

The health of this community is very good at present.

Wheat looks almost a failure at this place.

There has been but very little plowing done at this place.

Mr. Boss Loy and family were visiting Mr. J. A. Darnell and family one night last week.

Mr. Z. L. Bennett and little daughter, Dora, were visiting the family of J. G. Gadberry last Sunday.

Messrs. Robt. Loy, Z. L. Bennett, Silas Denny and Allen Morrison were in Columbia last Monday.

Mr. J. L. Darnell and family were visiting at Mr. R. T. Gadberry's last Monday.

Martin Frankum and Willie Bennett were visiting Hollis and Prather Morrison Saturday.

The singing at Mr. J. W. Pierce's last Tuesday night was largely attended and enjoyed by all present.

Eld F. J. Barger preached an interesting sermon at Smith's Chapel last Sunday.

Messrs. G. G. Morrison and Rollin Johnson were visiting the latter's brother, Mr. Ed Johnson, at Glensfork, Sunday.

Mrs. Nettie Johnson and children were visiting at Mr. G. G. Morrison's last Sunday.

The social at Mr. John Young's last Saturday night was largely attended and enjoyed by all present.

Sanio.

Owing to so much frozen weather the farmers of this community are making slow progress in preparing for their present crops. Experienced farmers say so much frozen weather is injurious to wheat.

Our merchant, Mr. T. W. Bryant, is doing a good business. The people like him and appreciate having him as a merchant.

Mr. Tom Barrett is aiming to start to Arkansas Monday which he means to make his future home. We wish him much luck. He has been a farmer of this community for a long time and will be missed much by the people.

The hucksters are canvassing the county in search of produce, paying 14 cents for chickens and 18 cents for eggs.

On account of bad roads there wasn't many attended court at Jamestown last week from this place. I understand Judge Carter fined several of the boys for loud talking in the court-house and some for not being present when called. I expect the Judge means business.

The farmers of this community are sowing lots of burley tobacco beds, contemplating putting out a considerable crop.

There are several crops of tobacco in this community for sale yet some being sold every few days.

Several of the young men from this neighborhood are going to other states to work this year as they can get better wages.

The hog buyers are buying every pig they can get. Hogs are scarcer in this community than I ever knew them.

An Awful Eruption.

Of a volcano excites brief interest, and your interest in skin eruptions will be as short, if you use Bucklen's Arnica Salve, their quickest cure. Even the worst boils, ulcers, or fever sores are soon healed by it. Best for Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sore Lips, Chapped Hands, Chillsbains and Piles. It gives instant relief. 25c at Pauli Drug Co.

Just received, a nice line of candies from D. Auerbach & Sons, of New York. Call on us. Young Bros.

I. N. Penick.

The death of I. N. Penick, which occurred at his home at Miami, Green County, January 31st, has been the occasion of deepest regret to the many friends of that splendid gentleman. He had been in feeble health for several years but his condition was not considered serious, and the end was unexpected.

Mr. Penick was born March 18th 1839, in Green county and he resided there a greater portion of his life. He was at one time engaged in the tobacco and dry goods business at Gordons, and later in the drug business at Allenville. For a number of years he has made his home at Miami.

He is survived by a wife and five children, all of whom were at home with the exception of one son, Charles R. Penick, of Stanford, Texas.

Mr. Penick was one of a family of thirteen children, only two of whom, J. C., and J. T. Penick, of Elkton now survive.

Mr. Penick was a scholar and most profound thinker, his opinion was sought by those of every walk of life and no one ever erred who followed his advice. His brilliant and broad mind ever alert to the interests of all with whom he came in contact and the world at large was never dimmed by the physical suffering and infirmities incident to old age.

His daily life was a living sermon and Christ-like in all its representation. An affectionate and considerate husband, wise counsellor, sympathetic friend, loved and revered by all who knew him, his loss will be most keenly felt. His character lofty in principle, charitable in deed and thought, conscientious to a martyr's degree, and a Christian in the truest sense, is the life of this noble man.

In the Chancery of the recording Angel the volume of I. N. Penick's earthly career has been closed, and the pages so snowy white reveal not a blot.

A True Friend.

Kentuckians on Top.

"Arizona will receive statehood at this session of Congress," said Col. Frank Cox, a lawyer of Phoenix, Ariz.

"I have the assurance of members of the Senate that the statehood bill will be passed by the upper branch of Congress."

Col. Cox is one of the prominent lawyers of Arizona and has frequently been mentioned as a candidate for United States Senator from Arizona.

"Former Delegate Mark Smith ought to be, and, in my opinion, will be, one of the first. Senators from Arizona when the Territory is admitted," said Col. Cox. "His speech against joint statehood has endeared him to the people of Arizona, and when it comes to electing a United States Senator I think Mark Smith will be the choice of the people for the highest honor they can give."

If Mark Smith should come to the Senate from Arizona and Dave Francis from Missouri as is now most likely seven Kentuckians will occupy seats in that distinguished body, namely Bradley, Paynter, Cullon, Piles, Stone Smith and Francis.

David R. Francis, of St. Louis, Mo., is in the city. He said to your correspondent last night:

"Yes, I am not only a candidate for United States Senator from Missouri to succeed Mr. Warner, but I am going to win out. Why, Missouri will give an unprecedented Democratic majority in November, mark that down on the table of your memory."

An Exciting Ride.

In going over and of the mountain roads on the way to the crest of the Andes the traveler has need of steady nerves. A passage in "The Andean Land," by C. S. Osborn, describes the journey.

The road is narrow and rocky and rutty and steep, with no walls to speak of except tumble-down ones that increase the danger by their false suggestion of safety, and in one place the wagon would fall 2,000 feet if it should roll off the edge of the mountain.

The road has no graceful sweeps or round, easy curves as it takes its way up the titanic heights, but rather it zigzags like the teeth of a saw, ascending in short stretches and doubling back at sharply acute angles, leaving very little room for a team and wagon to turn in when driven slowly and carefully and two abreast.

Now, imagine, if you can, the horses driven madly in a gallop, no trot—that would be slow—but in quick, short, jerky jumps, such as the mustang-like animals would make under the saddle when pressed.

The short, high coach follows the cavorting horses, jerking, careering and springing like a small boat sailing in a wildly choppy sea. You perceive that the wheels are strong and the springs, too, and the whole rig evidently intended for chariot racing.

The driver groans, yells, whistles shrilly, cracks his thick rawhide whip, lashes his horses and does everything he knows that will inspire fear and induce speed. All this you become accustomed to a measure on your dash up the narrow road dug in to and blown out of the giant ribs of the towering mountains.

Work.

Remember, my son, you have to work. Whether you handle a pick or a pen, a wheelbarrow or a set of books, dig ditches or edit a newspaper, ring an auction bell and write funny things, you look around, you will see men who are the most able to live the rest of their days without work who work the hardest.

Do not be afraid to kill yourself with overwork. It is beyond your power to do that on the sunny side of thirty. They do sometimes, but it's because they quit work at 6 p. m. and don't get home until 2 a. m. It is the interval that kills, my son. The work gives you an appetite for meals; it lends solidity to your slumbers; it gives you a perfect and graceful appreciation of a holiday. There are young men who do not work, but the world is not proud of them. It does not know their names even; it simply speaks of them as "So-and-So's boys." Nobody likes them. The great busy world does not know they are there. So find what you want to be and take off your coat make a dust in the world. The busier you are the less harm you will be apt to get into, the sweeter will be your slumbers, the brighter and happier your holidays, and the better satisfied the world will be with you."—Bob Burdette.

Health of this community is not very good at present.

Revs. Frank and Joe Turner, Charley Dean and George Groves, closed a series of meetings a few days ago at this place with 5 conversions and three additions to the U. B. church, leaving a large number unsaved. We believe they all intend some time in the future to forsake sin and be saved, and we hope it will be in the near future that a large number of young converts will be on their way to the home that was prepared for them from the foundation of the world for they are nice intelligent people and they keep such good order and gave the preacher such good attention. We believe they were all interested about their selves, and we do hope they will all soon be on their way to Heaven. Oh! what a happy time there would be here on earth if every body was trying to serve the Lord. Now young converts trust in the Lord for he has said in his blessed word, that he will never leave thee alone. Trust in the Lord in all of your troubles and you will come out more then conquer in the end.

Roosevelt Okla.

Editor News.

Thinking perhaps that some of my friends and relatives would like to read a letter from this part of the world I would write a few words.

We receive the grand old Adair County News every Saturday and it is certainly appreciated in our home. We live six miles South west of Roosevelt, we like the country allright. Cotton is the principal crop that is raised here. Roosevelt is a town of about five hundred population, situated thirteen miles south of Hobart, the county seat on the Frisco railroad. The town contains two cotton gins, three hardware stores, one feed store, one dry goods store, five general stores, two banks, two barber shops, one hotel, two restaurants, two churches, two lumber yards, telephone exchange, drug store, two black smith shops, a fine school building and a great many residences.

Oklahoma has a good school system and teachers are paid liberal salaries. Some of the school land is selling this winter and is bringing a high price. Cotton yielded more last year than was expected and brought a good price, the corn yield was light. Corn is selling from 60 to 75 cent. We are having cold weather now.

As my letter is getting long I will close. I remain respectfully, Leonard Montgomery.

Valentine to the Faculty.

"A fair Western co-ed got last year, by way of valentine, notice to quit from the faculty. She and a senior had fallen in love. Both, therefore, were fired."

The speaker was Dr. Charles L. Russellman, of Bangor, the noted writer on coeducation. He continued:

"The co-ed being fired wrote this interesting reply to the faculty:

"Gentlemen—You have expelled me for neglecting my studies, yet I have learned more at your institution more than you will ever know. I have learned the meaning of love.

"What is the use of studying botany if I am not allowed to gather roses? Why should I devote my time to astronomy if I may not look at the stars? What does it profit me to spend years on mathematics and neglect my own figure?"

"You have expelled my fiance also. Do you think he is unhappy? We were married last evening."—Ex.

The Song of The Roving Sons.

Just across the sunset's barriers, just across the Farthest Sea, Lies the Land of Lost Illusions, lies the Isle of Used to Be, Lies the harbor that we sailed from when the world was all atone

To the key of life's full flower, in the symphony of June.

How they begged that we should tarry ere we launched our darling bark,

Setting sail from southern sunlight to the realm of winter dark,

How they pleaded we should never brave the breakers and the foam,

But should bide beside the hearthstone and should have a life at home.

"No," we answered, "we must hurry, for the Roving Sons are we;

We must make the great adventure, we must sail the Seventh Sea;

We have done with sloth and safety and the Little People's ways;

Better bitterness than languor, better life than length of days."

And we sail—and still are sailing underneath a starless sky, Over wastes of waves uncharted, where we know not how nor why;

Certain only we can never more recross the Farthest Sea To the Land of Lost Illusions, to the Isle of Used to Be. —Saturday Evening Post.

Foolish Extravagance.

Bills are pending in the Kentucky Legislature creating the following financial obligations other than the State now has to meet:

For the penitentiaries $400,000

For the State Fair $200,000.

For the State Normals $150,000

Salaries $50,000.

Other special appropriations $100,000.

By the extravagance of the last Legislature there is now a deficit in the State of treasury of over $1,000,000 and the State is face to face with a bond issue to maintain its credit. Never in the whole history of Kentucky could extravagance be less excused or less tolerated. It is a time for retrenchment and reform and not for either liberality or extravagance. What will be the condition of the State treasury in half of these bills are passed or half their amounts go through before another Legislature convenes? The warrants of the State cannot be paid. The credit of the Commonwealth will be impaired and the responsibility will rest, not upon Gov. Wilson and his associates in the State offices, but upon the Democratic party as they will be due directly to a Democratic legislature. When an individual becomes extravagant at a time when his income is not meeting his natural expenditures he is looked upon with contempt and soon becomes a bankrupt. What shall we say of a Legislature in Kentucky which pursues the same suicidal policy? The Democrats who passed in the last Legislature new appropriations carrying over one half million dollars are largely responsible for an empty treasury

Now if this Legislature repeats the policy of its predecessor it will be abiding insult to injury in the end the taxpayers will have to foot the bill.

We are not discussing the merits or demerits of any of these appropriations, we are just pointing out the folly of increasing the expenditures of the State with an empty treasury.

At this time no matter how meritorious a measure may be which carries a big appropriation it should be defeated unless the Legislature has the courage to increase the tax rate to meet it.

We do not want higher taxation in Kentucky but the State does need retrenchment and reform.

The members of the Legislature who vote for extravagant expenditures such as have been offered are simply digging their political graves and they are putting a burden upon their party which will seriously handicap it in the next State election.—E. Town News.

Willing to Stay.

A man went to heaven, and after he had been there a few days he grew so lonesome that he told St. Peter he reckoned that he'd go down and take a look at the other place.

"But if you go down there you can't get back," said St. Peter.

"Well I only want to go just to look at the place," said the man, so St. Peter agreed to give him a return pass if he promised to be back along toward night.

He agreed took the pass and started off. When he reached his destination the first thing he saw was a party of old friends playing poker, but they wouldn't let him into the game because he admitted that he had no money.

"Well, I'll fix that all right," he said, as he left them and wandered off through one of the corridors. Pretty soon he came back and threw a big roll of bills down on the table and demanded chips. They all looked in astonishment at the size of his pile and wanted to know where he got it, saying that they would not play with him unless he told them.

"That's all right he said. "Give me the chips. I sold my pass."

Greatest chance never came by chance.

On Feb. 10, 1910, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Gilpin, of Casey county, and claimed for its victim their dear beloved little darling Raymon Lewis, age 15 months. Little Raymon was sick just a few days with that terrible disease diptheria, but all that medical skill could do was done but to no avail for God saw fit to call it to the home prepared for his children. The remains were laid to rest in the family burying ground, at home to await the coming of the resurrection morn.
